

Dr Bill Hamilton Craig - BSc Hons Civil Engineering 1968, MSc 1970, PhD 1975

In September 2015 I retired from the University as Reader in Civil Engineering, having spent 50 continuous years in the institution as undergraduate, postgraduate and staff member. At the same time I stood for election as a member of the AAAB and have enjoyed my time in this role which runs to September 2018. Still living on the outskirts of Greater Manchester I have been able to attend all Board meetings in both Manchester and London and have contributed to a number of activities within the University on behalf of the Board. I would like to continue for a second term.

Professionally I am a Chartered Civil Engineer and past chair of the British Geotechnical Society (now Association). I still publish occasionally and research the history of various aspects of engineering as well as volunteering as a corn miller for the National Trust and taking part in amateur dramatic activity.
